A note on compensation.

As a New York Life Agent, I strive to provide a valuable service by explaining the benefits, terms, and conditions of New York Life products.

If you decide to purchase a New York Life product, I will receive compensation from New York Life. That compensation, and the compensation of any other licensed company representatives you may have been in contact with during the sales process, will vary based on a number of factors, including the type of product that you buy and the amount of New York Life products that I sell. I can provide further information about the expected compensation relating to your purchase and relating to any alternative quotes.

New York Life complies with New York State insurance law, which strictly limits the commissions and other forms of compensation paid to Agents for the sale of individual life insurance policies or annuity contracts.

Typically, these limitations are based on a percentage of premium.
